STAY CALM

The truth is that market ups and downs are normal.

In fact, in any given calendar year since 1980, the average drawdown (peak to trough decline) of the S&P 500® Index historically has been 14%.

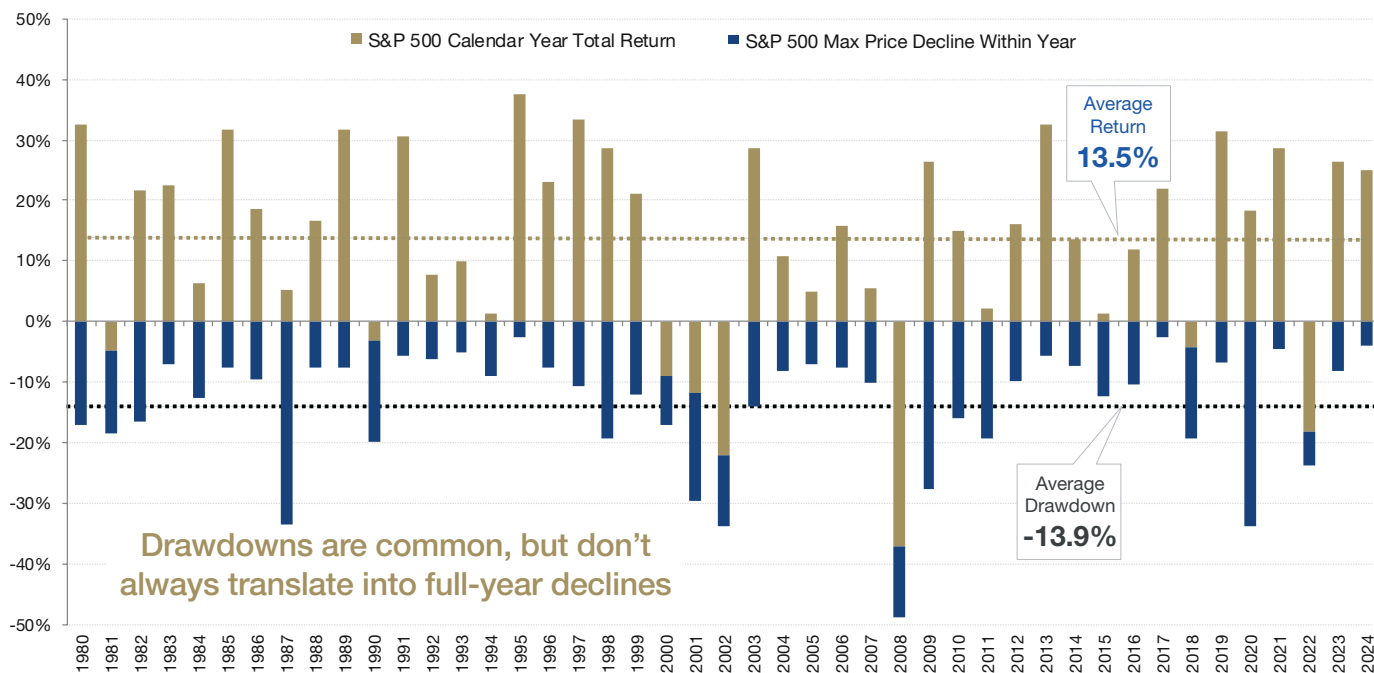

Yet, despite the intra-year volatility, the index has tended to finish most years higher than it started. Since 1980, for example:

- The S&P 500 has delivered an average calendar-year return of more than 13%, including positive returns in many of the same years that large drawdowns occurred.
- The index also has delivered positive returns 82% of the time and over 42% of the time the index has returned more than 20%.

Though such favorable outcomes can never be guaranteed, it is clear that being calm and patient during periods of volatility historically has rewarded investors.

DRAWDOWNS ARE COMMON, BUT THEY DON'T ALWAYS TRANSLATE INTO FULL-YEAR DECLINES

STAY IN

An investor who exited the market and subsequently missed just 10 of the best-performing days in the past 27 years would have lost out on more than half of the gains. Given the difficulty of market-timing, a far better course would have been to stay in, with the knowledge that volatility is normal and that missed upside can dramatically cut into long-term returns.

<sup>1</sup>The “best” days to be invested are defined as the days on which the S&P 500 Index delivered its highest returns for the given periods based on historical data. <sup>2</sup>Returns are measured based on the S&P 500 Index. <sup>3</sup>This illustration depicts the value of a hypothetical $10,000 investment in the S&P 500 Index from January 1, 1998, through December 31, 2024. ## STAY THE COURSE

For long-term equity investors, the most powerful factor is time: historically speaking, an investor’s time horizon is directly correlated with the likelihood that a portfolio will experience positive returns. For these long-term investors, staying the course is the most critical consideration when trying to build wealth and meet their investment objectives.
